

Episode 4 - "They Gonna Hear Me In Argentina"

A Broken Tribe

The seven Timbira tribe members return from their first Tribal Council where Stephen was voted out after a divided vote. "Tonight we had Tribal Council and my plan worked, uh, to get rid of Stephen, but Coach pretty much made a vote on his own," Tyson explains. "You know, he decided to vote for Carolina, so that tells me that I probably can't control him later on in the game cause he's gonna vote on who he thinks has the least integrity, and not on being strategic." Continuing to explain his strategy, Tyson tells the camera "It's pretty important for me to have people who are gonna listen to what I tell them to do, and you know, Coach didn't listen to me tonight, so he may have to be next to go."

Unaware that their fate may once again change, Carolina and Erinn congratulate each other on staying in the game despite being the initial targets at Tribal Council: "The vote was a mixed blessing for me. Like, I'm happy to stay, but it was really hard for Stephen to go and Coach to still be here," Carolina expresses. "You know, I was just really ticked off at Jerry and Taj because Taj told me that she was voting for Coach, so I just kindof blew up for a second and lashed out."

"I thought Taj was voting for Coach," Carolina says in front of her tribemates. Surprised to hear her name mentioned, Taj looks up at Carolina. "Did I ever say that?" she asks. Carolina replies that Taj told her that before they left for Tribal Council. "Are you kidding me?!" a bewildered Taj exclaims, as Coach looks on with great interest. "We come back from, uh, Tribal Council, and Carolina tells everybody that I was gonna vote for Coach?" Taj narrates. "I mean, I didn't even know she was serious." "Here I thought I wasn't in any danger," Coach adds, "And Carolina all of a sudden, she lets this cat out of the bag and, I tell ya, the gloves came off after that."

Furious to be publicly accused of lying, Taj snaps back at Carolina: "I don't know what you're talking about, but you're lying!" "Why are you being so defensive about it?" Carolina asks. "You're putting words in my mouth that I never even said!" an angry Taj retorts. "I told you I was undecided and that's what I told everybody here, so why would I tell you something different?!" "You're full of [censored]," Carolina remarks. Taj shouts something back. "I can't understand you when you're screaming at me," Carolina quips. "Oh, I'm not screamin!" Taj yells. "You don't want me screamin' at you cause if I start screamin', they gonna hear me in Argentina!"

"This fight was, uh, pretty awesome." Tyson grins, as he watches with amusement. "I love the fact that, like, I engineered this blindside against Stephen and, uh, Carolina's not even mad at me, so yeah, it's great. I mean, I hope they stay at each other's throats. It's pretty amusing to watch." "I don't give a [censored] what she tells you," Taj later tells Coach and Tyson. "I didn't lie to nobody, and I never was gonna write your [Coach's] name down. I told her I was undecided and I don't even have nothin' else to stay." Coach reassures Taj that Carolina is grasping at straws and Taj was just her target. "Anytime there's drama in this tribe, it has Carolina's name in it. You know, I should have voted her out tonight," a furious Taj continues in her confessional, "So I won't make that same mistake again..."

Survivor: Tocantins Fanfic

The Flirting Game

On Day Ten, Joe and J.T. awake early and discuss the future of the game while they collect firewood. Envisioning a Final Five consisting of himself, J.T., Spencer, Sydney, and Debbie, Joe suggests that Spencer and Debbie be voted out first. "I say we take Syd with us to Final Three," he adds. This does not sit well with J.T., but not wanting to stir the pot prematurely, he weakly replies "Yeah." "Joe's Final Three is not the same as mine at this point in the game," J.T. worries. "You know, I promised Debbie that I'd keep her 'til the end. Nobody else in this alliance has promised Debbie anything, so that kinda makes me worry a little bit." He then turns his attention to Joe: "Joe is playin' a very strategic game and he's doin' a great job. You know, Joe could have everybody eatin' out of the palm of his hand in this game."

Later that morning, Sydney turns on her charm when she offers Joe a massage to get him ready for the next Reward Challenge: "I have a boyfriend back home, Kelly, and I'm definitely thinking about him every day," Sydney says, "But then again, it's a game, so you've gotta use your woman skills around these men, and if it means giving a backrub to keep them in shape for the challenges, that's what I'm trying to do." Meanwhile, Debbie expresses some concerns about the closeness between Sydney and Joe: "I've definitely noticed some flirtation with Sydney and Joe, and I don't know if it's because I'm a mom or because I'm a principal, but I noticed that right away." As Sydney continues to rub Joe's back, Debbie keeps a close watch on them: "I feel that Joe is very powerful because he has J.T., he has Sydney, and he has Spencer. You know, he's got the best seat in the house, so that's something I'm gonna really have to watch." Although Joe relishes his position of power at Jalapao, he is fearful of the future: "Things are going too good right now," he tells the camera. "Something's coming around the corner, and I don't know what it is but the game can't just be this easy."

Tribal Switch-Up

As Jalapao and Timbira arrive at what they suspect is a Reward Challenge, host Jeff Probst makes a surprise announcement: "It's time you got to know each other. Drop your buffs. We are switching tribes." Realizing that his alliance will inevitably be split up, Joe is devastated by this news: "I was definitely not too, uh, excited about switching tribes. You know, I had everything set; I was pretty much at the top of the Jalapao tribe with J.T., so I mean, I can only go down from here."

The shocked and anxious Survivors are instructed to reach into a bag and pull out a colored tile, red representing Jalapao, and black representing Timbira. As each castaway pulls out a tile, the color of their buff reveals to which tribe the castaway will now belong. When it is all over, the new Jalapao consists of Candace, Coach, Tyson, Taj, J.T., and Sandy. The new Timbira tribe members are Debbie, Joe, Sydney, Spencer, Erinn, Carolina, and Jerry. "The only thing I was worried about was that I wasn't gonna end up on the same tribe as Tyson," Candace tells the camera, "But when I pulled out red and he pulled out red, I breathed a huge sigh of relief, so I think we just stick with our alliance and continue to have each other's backs." Having been separated from his core alliance, J.T. didn't share the same good fortune: "Original Jalapao's down to two members; Sandy and I's never been in an alliance, so I'm down and out. Things are really not lookin' my way." For better or for worse, the tribes will now have to start over, building new relationships and new alliances.

Survivor: Tocantins Fanfic

Reward Challenge - Shoulder The Load

After tossing the tribes their new buffs, Jeff Probst reveals that they will compete immediately for Reward. Jeff explains the rules of the challenge. Three members of each tribe will have a pole across their shoulders. In each round, two 20-pound weights will be added to that pole. The decision about which tribe member gets the weight will be made by two members of the opposing tribe. When the weight becomes too much, those who drop their weights will be eliminated from the challenge. Two men and one woman from each tribe will be the weight bearers. The last person standing wins Reward for their tribe. The Reward is a basket of fruit and wine. Since Jalapao has one extra member, they choose Candace to sit out of the challenge. Since Timbira has two extra members, they choose Carolina and Spencer to sit out.

The weight bearers for Jalapao are Tyson, Taj and J.T., while Sandy and Coach will be responsible for distributing the weight. For Timbira, the weight bearers are Joe, Jerry and Debbie, while Sydney and Erinn are the distributors. The weight bearers hold their own as the weight is piled on. Both tribes use the strategy of piling weight onto the opposing tribe's strongest member: J.T. for Jalapao, and Joe for Timbira. After some time has passed, both men are supporting 140 pounds. Joe drops out just as the next pair of weights is added, while J.T. continues to dig deep holding his weight. Timbira continues to add weight to J.T., bringing him up to 220 pounds. Jalapao evenly distributes their weight between Taj and Jerry in an attempt to slowly weaken the tribe's two remaining members. J.T. struggles with the weight and drops out at 220 pounds. As the challenge continues, Jerry can no longer handle the weight and drops out at 120 pounds, leaving Timbira's fate solely in Debbie's hands. Timbira piles their weight onto Tyson, who holds strong at 140 pounds for Jalapao. Debbie and Taj also receive more weight, and Debbie is soon supporting 100 pounds. She suddenly drops out, leaving both Taj and Tyson standing for Jalapao. The new Jalapao tribe wins Reward.

Spilling The Beans

As the victorious Jalapao tribe wanders back to camp with their basket of fruit and wine, Tyson takes stock of his new tribe members: "The new Jalapao tribe is me, Candace, Coach, Taj, Sandy, and J.T. Uh, we kept a majority of the old Timbira tribe, so even though I was thinking, you know, 'Do I get rid of Coach?' I think we'll probably stick together at least for now so, um, if we lose the next Immunity Challenge, it's most likely gonna be one of the Jalapao members."

Despite the celebratory mood, Sandy feels vulnerable in her new tribe and decides to try to strengthen her position by targeting J.T.: "In my other tribe, I was definitely gonna be next to go, you know, so I wanna make sure that I create some alliances and really play this game to the fullest. My plan is to get in with them and make 'em all vote for J.T. for this first one, you know, and let them think they can use me for my vote cause they ain't gonna know that I'm playin' them too." Taking a lesson from Sierra at the second Tribal Council, Sandy exposes the alliances that existed in the original Jalapao tribe. "Listen, and this is the truth," she begins. "The other five in the tribe was an alliance, and Joe had an alliance with J.T. and Sydney; J.T. had an alliance with Debbie, you know?" "They were five tight, huh?" Tyson asks, as Sandy dramatically nods her head and says “There were alliances with all of them.” “So say you all vote me off and then, uh, Timbira lost the next two Immunity Challenges, they’re gonna have an alliance of five at the merge and then they’re gonna vote your tribe off.”

Survivor: Tocantins Fanfic

Candace ponders the information from Sandy, but is skeptical of her intentions: “Sandy, right away, she spilled the beans on her old tribe, but it’s kinda like, okay, do you believe her? Cause either she’s lying or she’s telling the truth, but it’s just hard to tell when you’ve only known somebody a few hours.” “In all honesty, I would go with you guys to the end cause I have no one else, you know, in my other tribe,” Sandy tells them. Tyson and Taj hug her as she excitedly tells them how happy she is to be on a tribe with them: “The bottom line is, I’m gonna tell ‘em whatever the hell I need to say for me to stick around in this tribe longer than J.T. because I came to be the Survivor,” Sandy says to the camera. “You know, even though the numbers are against me, I’m not gonna give up. I’ll take it one Tribal Council at a time, but I am really elated I made it to a switch because now I can make it far in this game, I believe.”

Free Agent

At the Timbira camp, the new members are thrilled to discover the fishing gear and comfort items, and are cordially welcomed by Carolina, Jerry, and Erinn. As Spencer, Joe, Sydney, and Debbie check out the luxuries in their shelter, Joe sums up his position in his new tribe: “After today’s swap, I feel like it did work out better than I expected,” says Joe. “We got four of the original Jalapao members compared to, uh, three original Timbira, and I got to move to the tribe that has greater numbers, so it might actually be good.” Carolina and Erinn become paranoid that they’re once again in the minority and go off on a walk to discuss strategy: “Being outnumbered again was, like, the worst-case scenario,” Erinn tells the camera, “But thank God I at least have Carolina cause without her I would have been dead, and you know, Jerry seems like he’s gonna be somebody who really values loyalty in this game, so hopefully we can count on Jerry.” As Jerry prepares a meal of rice and beans for the tribe, Erinn asks him where his head is at in the game. “We gotta figure out a way to bring somebody over,” Jerry responds. “We know that we have to get somebody to flip,” Erinn continues in her confessional, “It’s just a question of who it is.” “I definitely say Debbie,” Erinn suggests. Jerry agrees that Debbie would be best, speculating that the other three members were in an alliance on Jalapao.

While the original Timbira members scheme to stay in the game, Debbie is also contemplating her future: “Right now, I am a free agent,” she says. “Without J.T. here, these people have no loyalty to me, so you know what? It’s time to get in this game; I sacrificed too much to be here to go home in fourth.”

Stay Together

As the new Jalapao tribe settles into their camp, Tyson, Coach, Candace, and Taj waste no time solidifying a tight alliance of four to get to the merge. “I definitely thought about, you know, throwing the challenge to keep everyone from old Timbira safe on the other tribe,” Tyson admits, “But if Carolina and Erinn got voted out, I don’t think anyone’d really care. I know I wouldn’t, so it’s not that big a deal. I mean, I’ll just let the cards fall, uh, where they may.” After agreeing that they should play to win in the upcoming challenge, they take Sandy's bait and conspire to vote J.T. out of the tribe first. "I think Sandy can be controlled, and uh, if we get her to the merge she won't win Immunity," Tyson tells his allies. Taj then recaps the afternoon's developments in her confessional: "I feel very confident in this Timbira alliance with Candace, Tyson, and Coach," she says. "We vowed that we would go to the merge together, so if we lose Immunity tomorrow, unfortunately, it's gonna be J.T."

Survivor: Tocantins Fanfic

Protecting An Ally

The next morning, Joe returns to the Timbira camp with treemail and reads the note to his tribe. Although the tribe gets pumped up and vows to beat Jalapao, Joe has an idea of his own: "I am strongly considering throwing the challenge to protect J.T.," he confesses in his confessional. "You know, just thinking about it logically, I think Sandy'd probably be more of a target than J.T. for this first, uh, Council, but I don't want to take a chance and lose an ally this early, so if I have any opportunity to throw it without making it obvious to the rest of my tribe, uh, I'm going to." As the rest of the tribe contemplates treemail, J.T. is aware that he must win this challenge if he is to last another day in the game.

Immunity Challenge - Try Any Angle

The Jalapao and Timbira tribes arrive on their mats as Jeff Probst explains the rules of the challenge. One tribe member at a time will race out on a zigzagged course, retrieve a puzzle piece and race back, at which point the next person will go. Once all eight puzzle pieces have been collected, they must be placed in the correct spot in a frame and rotated to spell out the winning phrase. The first tribe to spell out the winning phrase wins Immunity. Since Timbira has one extra member, Debbie sits out of the challenge. J.T. then reflects on the importance of winning Immunity: "The stakes are definitely high for me today. You know, since the switch-up I've felt very uneasy, so I gotta win this challenge today or I could be goin' home," he states.

As Jeff shouts "Go," the challenge is on. During the race to retrieve puzzle pieces, J.T. proves that he is worthy to stay as he dominates for Jalapao, helping his tribe gain an early lead over Timbira. Tyson also has another strong performance, as he quickly whips through the knots and retrieves his puzzle piece. Sandy's struggle to retrieve one of the final puzzle pieces slows her tribe down, opening a window for Timbira to catch up. Despite Sandy's slowness, Jalapao is the first to arrive at their respective station with all eight puzzle pieces, after J.T. has another strong performance and quickly retrieves the final piece. Spencer then makes up some time for Timbira, as he races back to the start with his tribe's final puzzle piece. Both tribes debate over what the winning phrase could be as they scramble to correctly place and turn the puzzle pieces. Attempting to lose the challenge for Timbira, Joe purposely turns puzzle pieces that he thinks are correct in order to throw his tribe off track. In the end, both tribes come close, but Jalapao edges out Timbira and solves their puzzle with the winning phrase, "Escape the vote: Jalapao wins immunity."

Jeff hands the Immunity Idol to a relieved J.T., as his tribemates celebrate their victory. "I don't know if we won today because J.T. owned the challenge or if it's because the other team sucked on the puzzle," Tyson speculates. "Probably a combination, but J.T. lives to fight another day, so I'm looking forward to seeing, um, which one of Carolina or Erinn gets the boot tonight."

To Betray Or Not To Betray?

With Tribal Council looming for the new Timbira tribe, Joe apologizes to his tribemates for his poor performance putting the puzzle together. "I don't know what happened," he says, attempting to be deceitful. Joe then explains his thoughts to the camera: "I fell short today, and I know it, but this time, it was all part of the plan to protect J.T., so uh, tonight, this is an easy decision. I think everybody in this tribe, the other tribe, has been kindof fed up with Carolina, so the four ex-Jalapao are gonna stick together and vote off Carolina: four, three."

Under the watchful eye of their tribemates, Joe and Sydney break off from the group to go to the water well. On the way, Joe confesses to his closest ally that he threw the challenge to protect J.T. "Losing today was strategic," Joe says as Sydney nods her head, "And as long as we can get ahead because of it, no harm, no foul." Trusting Joe's judgment, Sydney tells the camera, "Joe actually admitted to me that he threw the challenge, which I was a little worried about at first because this is a new tribe, but I think it could help us."

Spencer then walks down to the river, leaving Debbie alone at camp with the three original Timbira members: "Timbira has Tribal Council tonight, so somebody's going, and I've been giving this a lot of thought," Debbie tells the cameras. "The big question for me is do I make a move against Joe tonight or do I wait and see what happens in three days? And honestly, I don't know yet what I'm gonna do." Looking around to make sure they're alone, Debbie asks Carolina and Erinn who they're voting for. Carolina and Erinn propose voting for the biggest threat, Joe, but claim they'd be willing to vote for anyone if it meant staying in the game. "He is strong in the challenges," Debbie admits. "Yeah, that's what I was wondering about," Erinn agrees. A pensive Debbie replies "I don't know if tonight's the night [to vote out Joe]."

"My strategy right now is definitely to stay in an alliance with Carolina, and Jerry really has nowhere to go but to stay with the old Timbira," Erinn explains, "So it's like, right now, we only have three, and if we can get Debbie, I feel like we can definitely pull something off because Debbie wants to be in this game and I think we can mutually help each other." Carolina then proposes an alternative plan to Debbie: to keep the tribe strong, and yet ensure that Joe doesn't remain the most powerful player in the game, they will take out Joe's closest ally, Sydney. "I would need it guaranteed that I would be more than fourth if I went in with you guys," Debbie insists. Eager to secure her vote, Carolina and Erinn assure Debbie that they would gladly vote Jerry off before her and guarantee her one of the top three spots in their alliance. Later, Carolina reveals her true intentions in her confessional: "The bottom line is I'm not making an alliance with Debbie. I'm making an alliance to get myself three more days and if I had to vote her out next, I mean, I'm sorry; you know, that's just how the game goes."

Convinced Carolina's devious plan will put her in a better standing in the tribe, Debbie agrees to get onboard. "I don't like going against my tribe, but [Sydney]'s gonna vote whichever way Joe tells her to vote," Debbie says. Erinn responds "Yep." "As far as I'm concerned, the biggest threat in this tribe is Joe," Debbie says, "But if it can't be Joe tonight, it's gonna be Sydney as the next one to go because, without J.T., she's kindof like Joe's right hand." The three women quickly share their plan with Jerry, who agrees to vote out Sydney. "I could be making a mistake," Debbie continues in her confessional, "But I'm trusting Carolina and, um, Erinn."

Survivor: Tocantins Fanfic

As the thunder rumbles in the distance and a rain storm begins, the Timbira members huddle in their shelter in the final moments before Tribal Council. With Sydney's head rested in his lap, Joe whispers to his allies to confirm the vote against Carolina. Spencer eagerly lets Joe know he's voting Carolina, while Debbie stares out at the pouring rain with the wheels turning fiercely in her head: "It's been running through my head all day, and every second closer to Tribal Council, I second-guess myself. You know, do I vote Carolina? Do I vote Sydney? So, you know, somebody's gonna be surprised tonight, and I don't know who it's gonna be." Carolina grabs her torch and reflects on her status in the tribe, as Timbira walks out to Tribal Council: "If Debbie went back on her word and voted for me, I guess I wouldn't be shocked. I mean, I'm just praying that this plan'll work and Sydney goes home and not me. I'm definitely not ready to leave at all."

Tribal Council #4 - Timbira Tribe

At Tribal Council, Jeff begins by asking Carolina about the switch before moving on to the Immunity Challenge. "Jerry, how frustrating is it to come from a tribe that really was winning and now as the new Timbira you lose back-to-back challenges?" Jeff asks. "Uh, it's definitely frustrating," Jerry responds. "Nobody wants to come to Tribal Council, whether on this tribe or the other tribe. "It's a bad place to be," Jerry laughs. Jeff then asks Erinn how the game changed for her after the switch: "Everybody has these relationships established and you come into this new tribe, you're outnumbered right off the bat, and you don't feel like you have any of that, so you don't really know what direction to go in. It's like, 'do you wait around for somebody to let you in, or do you try to wiggle your way in to somebody else's alliance?' I mean, it's a tough thing to do. It's not a fun spot to be." After discussing the relationships in the tribe, Jeff asks Joe if he's made an effort to get to know the original Timbira members: "I think you'd be an idiot not to try and get to know them," he responds, "cause you don't know what's gonna happen, but I'm not gonna say that I trust them just yet."

As the subject turns to the impending vote, Carolina suggests that just because there's four original Jalapao members, "one of them has to be first out and if they come with us, you know, they might not be first out anymore." Jeff says that Carolina makes a valid point and asks Debbie what she thinks: "You're absolutely right, Jeff," Debbie states. "I may be in the majority right now, but once we get to four, I'm on the bottom again." Sydney's face shows signs of nervousness, as Jeff addresses Spencer: "Do you think that's true that Debbie would be on the bottom?" Jeff inquires. Spencer answers that it's hard to say because everyone has their own perceptions about where they fall in the tribe and "the person who thinks they're controlling things one second could easily be voted out right after that, so just because Debbie feels like she's on the bottom, um, it might not be the case."

Jeff then asks Joe if he's concerned at all that it could be him tonight. "You know, I get a little nervous," Joe says. "I get a little concerned because it only takes one person right now to turn the whole game, but honestly, I feel confident in how the vote's gonna go tonight. It's nothing against these guys, but it's like Erinn said, everybody already has relationships and it's just safer to stick with what you know right now and it makes sense for Jalapao to vote together at this point." The discussion then turns to the subject of trust: "If I'm Debbie, uh, I don't know if I can trust Carolina; I don't know if I can trust Erinn, and same goes for Jerry," Joe answers to Jeff's next question. "We may not have given her a reason to trust us, but we haven't given her a reason to not trust us," Erinn interjects. Jeff then follows up by asking who in the tribe should be most worried if Jalapao votes together: "I would say it's probably not gonna be Jerry, so Carolina and Erinn should both be worried," Joe states. As Debbie's eyes dart towards the floor, Sydney confidently nods her head: "The people who made the right alliances and are playing the game well enough won't go home, I guess," she says. "So we'll see..." Joe then cautions Debbie that even if she were to go with Timbira, she'd only be fourth with them as well, so she should just stick with her tribe: "I'll forgive her for being disloyal," he adds. With this, the new Timbira tribe members cast their votes as Debbie faces a major decision.

Survivor: Tocantins Fanfic

Jeff then tallies the votes, and reveals them one at a time to the castaways:

CAROLINA.

CAROLINA.

SYDNEY.

SYDNEY.

SYDNEY.

CAROLINA.

The tension in the air is thick, as Jeff prepares to read the final vote. Joe and Sydney exchange one last glance, as Joe's gaze assures Sydney she's safe. But he's wrong...

SYDNEY.

In a nail-biting four to three vote, Sydney Wheeler, the 24 year-old model and interior designer from San Diego, California, becomes the fourth person voted out of Survivor: Tocantins - The Brazilian Highlands, as Debbie betrays her old Jalapao tribe and forms an alliance with the members of the original Timbira.

Sydney's Final Words

Almost at a loss for words to be voted out tonight, an awestruck Sydney leaves behind her final words: "I'm shocked to be voted out tonight. You know, I made my alliances in the game and I definitely didn't expect someone to jump ship so early after a switch. I don't know; I guess I'm not really too surprised that it was Debbie, you know, who switched over, but we'll see. Hopefully Joe and Spencer will be able to pull some strings and keep going for Jalapao. It was a great experience and I'd do it again in a heartbeat."

Episode 5 - Undisclosed Title

At Timbira, tensions mount between Joe and Debbie, leading to another post-Tribal Council confrontation.

The Survivors play for an afternoon at the Charmin Café, and surprise letters from home bring some castaways to tears.

An Immunity Challenge turns physical as two determined castaways almost come to blows with one another.

Episode 4 Voting History:

4 Votes Against	Survivors Voting Against Sydney

3 Votes Against	Survivors Voting Against Carolina
